Are You Prepared For An Autism Emergency?

Research indicates that persons with developmental disabilities, including a rapidly rising autism population, are approximately seven times more likely to come in contact with law enforcement and emergency personnel. Police and first response professionals will meet children and adults with autism in field situations. Dennis Debbaudt's training will make these interactions safer and less stressful. Sunday, March 13, 2011 starting with special presentation by Temple Grandin followed by two training sessions presented by Dennis Debbaudt. Session 1, provides the best tools and options for parents, care providers, educators and persons with autism when developing partnerships with law enforcement, first response, and criminal justice agencies. Session 2, training will teach recognition and response contact, perpetrator/victim restraint and arrest options; dilemmas in interrogation and interview settings; and School Resource Officer issues. Individuals that attend this workshop will be able to train coworkers with the materials provided as well as a Certificate of Attendance.
